Death Takes Prominent Grayling Citizens

Three deaths occurred this week that means much to Grayling—Rasmus Hanson, pioneer lumberman; Edward S. Houghton, surveyor and timberman of this city, and C. T. Kerry, Saginaw, president of the Kerr & Hanson Flooring Co. Mr. Hanson and Mr. Houghton passed away Monday evening, and Mr. Kerry early the following morning.

R. HANSON PASSED AWAY MONDAY

WAS ONE OF MICHIGAN'S PIONEER LUMBERMEN.

For Half a Century Directed Grayling's Industries.

Rasmus Hanson, Grayling's best known citizen, passed away peacefully at his home here Monday evening at 9:37 o'clock. He had made a noble fight against an attack of pneumonia, which was the second one this year, but he lacked the strength to recover. He also had been greatly weakened some time ago by a stroke of paralysis. He was 81 years of age.

Although Mr. Hanson's recovery had appeared quite doubtful for several days, still the news of his passing was a very decided shock to the people of this city where he had resided for nearly a half century, and it cast a gloom of deep sorrow over its citizens. The news of his passing spread rapidly over the city and messages early announced it to the outside world.

We love to think of Mr. Hanson as we knew him—a keen, intelligent business man, an indefatigable worker, a loyal citizen and faithful and congenial friend. In early life he had learned the lessons of industry and thrift and by their practice not only built up a very substantial competence but also a large circle of friends among his home citizens, those of his chosen State and country until his acquaintance radiated from his own comfortable domicile to the extreme ends of the earth.

In the obituary of his life that is taken from an autobiographical sketch many things are not mentioned that are of interest and that reflect to himself up to the position of foreman for the firm, for whom he continued to work until 1827. Having accumulated a little money, he became associated with Ernest N. Salling in buying timber and lumbering it and selling the logs and also getting out logs for other parties. In the fall of 1871 he sold out to Engleman, Babcock & Salling, and was engaged as woods manager by this firm, with whom he continued for two years. In the meantime he had associated himself with Neil's Michigan in jobbing and logging, and after leaving the employ of the former firm he organized the firm of Michelson, Hanson & Co., which in 1873 was merged in the new firm of R. Hanson & Co. This was given to him before he left, he was looked up and the check mailed. This practice was carried out during the war with Spain as well as during the World War.

Mr. Hanson's gift to the State of 15,000 acres at what was then Portage Lake (now Lake Margrethe) was certainly a crowning event and has proven to be the finest military reservation anywhere in America. This is destined to remain indefinitely a lasting memorial to his philanthropy.

This was followed later by his gift of the officers' beautiful club house—a large amount of pine and hardwood timber covering about 60,000 acres. In 1900 the firm began the erection of a hardware mill at Johannesburg. Mr. Hanson was also a member of the Michelson & Hanson Lumber Co. of Lewiston, Mich., having mills at Lewiston and at Saling. He was a director of this company and general manager of his own company. He also duties of raising funds for local events and in the making up of just deficits have always found him faithful and ready to respond whenever needed.

While always interested in politics it may truthfully be said of him that he seldom if ever, interfered locally but was willing that the people do the choosing and he was the last to complain should their selections not always have turned out wisely.

In the passing of Mr. Hanson, Grayling is losing one of its most loyal citizens, one who loved his own home city, and a sincere friend. He was a member of the Danish Lutheran church into which faith he received his baptism early in life. By his wealth he was able to assist his church but his benevolence did not terminate there. All churches in our community profited from his contributions. And Mercy Hospital, one of the finest institutions in Northern Michigan, would never have been instituted except for the financial and moral support he gave it.

Obituary

Rasmus Hanson, of the firm of Salling, Hanson & Co., Grayling, Mich., was born at Vester Kipping, Falster, Denmark, Oct. 14, 1845. He attended the common schools until he was 14 years old, and was then confirmed in the Lutheran church. He worked on his father's farm until the fall of 1863, when the war broke out between Denmark and the German confederacy, when, in connection with another party, he started out as an army cutter, but circumstances were unfavorable, and the venture yielded no profits. He returned to his father's farm, but found farm life too slow for his energies, and he finally agreed with his father to emigrate to America. He left his home May 3, 1865, and landed in New York the 15th. He decided to make for the interior, and located at Racine, Wis., where he hired out on a farm and worked four months. He then went to Manistee, Mich., where he met Mr. B. Sweet on the wharf and hired out at $20.00 per month. In a very short time he worked himself up to the position of foreman for the firm, for whom he continued to work until 1827. Having accumulated a little money, he became associated with Ernest N. Salling in buying timber and lumbering it and selling the logs and also getting out logs for other parties. In the fall of 1871 he sold out to Engleman, Babcock & Salling, and was engaged as woods manager by this firm, with whom he continued for two years. In the meantime he had associated himself with Neil's Michigan in jobbing and logging, and after leaving the employ of the former firm he organized the firm of Michelson, Hanson & Co., which in 1873 was merged in the new firm of R. Hanson & Co. This was given to him before he left, he was looked up and the check mailed. This practice was carried out during the war with Spain as well as during the World War.

Mr. Hanson's gift to the State of 15,000 acres at what was then Portage Lake (now Lake Margrethe) was certainly a crowning event and has proven to be the finest military reservation anywhere in America. This is destined to remain indefinitely a lasting memorial to his philanthropy.

This was followed later by his gift of the officers' beautiful club house—a large amount of pine and hardwood timber covering about 60,000 acres. In 1900 the firm began the erection of a hardware mill at Johannesburg. Mr. Hanson was also a member of the Michelson & Hanson Lumber Co. of Lewiston, Mich., having mills at Lewiston and at Saling. He was a director of this company and general manager of his own company. He also helped to organize the Michigan Sugar Company, the first sugar company organized in Michigan, and also the Bay City Sugar Co., in both of which he was director, and was interested in the Crawford County Exchange Bank and other commercial and financial enterprises.

Mr. Hanson was a Republican, but disagreed with the party as to the treatment of the new possessions. He was an alternate to the Minneapolis convention in 1892 and a member of the Michigan Electoral College in 1896. He was elected the first county treasurer of Crawford county in 1880 and received the entire vote of his township. He was a member of the local school board for 15 years, was a 32nd degree Mason, and was a member of the National and State Lumbermen's Associations, of the Michigan Club, the L. H. Club, etc.

Mr. Hanson was married Sept. 17, 1867, to Miss Margrethe Hanson, and their five children are Matilda, wife of H. A. Bauman; Margrethe, wife of J. Sidney Graham; Thorwald, wife of Eberhard and Oscar.

Mr. Hanson also re-organized the German American Sugar Company and served as President for two years, but on account of his extensive lumbering business, he was unable to continue the sold part of his stock but continued director of the company. He also organized the Grayling Lumber Company, located at Monroe, Louisiana. He became managing director and treasurer and continued as such until the property was sold and the money was refunded to the stockholders. He also organized the L. Jenson Lumber Company, doing business at Ewen, Michigan, in the upper peninsula on the South Shore & Atlantic Railroad. He also became a stockholder in the Diamond Lumber Company doing business at Green Bay, Wisconsin. He organized the R. Hanson & Sons Lumber Company, Sept. 16, 1908, and also organized the Hanson Lumber Company, Sept. 16, 1908. He was managing director and treasurer in both of these last concerns. His stock in the L. Jenson Lumber Company he sold in the spring of 1918. He was also stockholder in great many other companies. The American Car & Foundry, the N. Y. C. R. R., the Penna. R. R., United States Steel and several others.

He was one of the organizers of the Grayling Box Co., that is now successfully operating and also of the Grayling Development Co., that is busy drilling for oil.

A much appreciated gift to the Danish citizens was the erection of the Danish Hall, where a touch of their native land might be kept sweet in their memories. This charming place has fulfilled many needs both to the Danish societies and to other citizens of Grayling as well. In presenting it to his countrymen Mr. Hanson stated that all he requested in return was that "they use it."

Funeral Thursday Afternoon

The funeral is being held this afternoon. At 2 o'clock services are being held in the home and conducted by Rev. Peter J. Kotche, pastor of the Danish Lutheran church. At 2:30 o'clock services will be held at the Michelson Memorial church and be conducted by Rev. J. W. Greenwood, pastor. The remains will be laid to rest in the family burial vault at Elmwood cemetery.

Grayling schools will close this afternoon and the business places between the hours of 1:30 and 4:30 o'clock as a fitting tribute of the honor in which Mr. Hanson was held at home.

The grandchildren of the family, Mrs. Ralph Routier, Detroit; Mrs. Walter Woodson, Salisbury, N. C.; Jasper Hanson, St. Johns Military Academy, Wis., and Misses Margrethe and Ellis Hanson, Bennett school, New York City; Virginia Hanson at school in Chicago; are home to attend the funeral. Also Mrs. Maximus Bay, of Montana, sister of Mr. Hanson, has arrived and stockholders of the Salling, Hanson Co. and many friends will no doubt be here for the funeral.

It is with the deepest sincerity that we extend to Mrs. Hanson and the family our sympathy in this their greatest hour of sorrow, and we are certain that such sentiment is in the hearts of their home friends.

C. T. KERRY OF FLOORING CO. DEAD

WEEK'S ILLNESS NOT THOUGHT SERIOUS, CULMINATES IN DEATH

Charles T. Kerry, president of the Kerr & Hanson Flooring Company of this city, prominent Saginaw lumberman and business man, died early Tuesday at his home, 632 Thompson street, after a week's illness. Though he had been ill, his condition was not thought alarming, and it was not known that Monday afternoon that it was known to be serious.

For many years Mr. Kerry had been associated with the lumber business in Saginaw, Bay City, Reed City and Grayling, and was well known in Saginaw and elsewhere throughout the state to a wide circle of business men.

He had been ill for some time and was unable to continue his work as director and treasurer and continued as such until the property was sold and the money was refunded to the stockholders. He also organized the L. Jenson Lumber Company, doing business at Ewen, Michigan, in the upper peninsula on the South Shore & Atlantic Railroad. G. O. P. AND SMITH

Washington, D. C. — The Republican camp is divided as to Al Smith's political capacity and possibilities. One group holds that his danger to the Republican Party is likely to be increased by understanding his strength. This group feels if "Al" is nominated, instead of a Republican walkaway, it will be a real horse-race. They credit him with the ability to New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island and headway in Indiana. Adding these electoral votes to those that will come to him out of hand from the Southern states, the margin of safety, as they figure it, will be too close for comfort.

The second group maintains his nomination will allow a virgin period for all Republican leaders. New York, they argue, is full of voters who will support Smith for governor, but never for President; that New Jersey is as strong as the Rock of Gibraltar which is one of its citizens rediscovered; that the talk about Connecticut and Rhode Island is ridiculous; and that the Smith candidacy will automatically result in the border and interior states sharply snapping back into Republican line.

Republicans as a whole will do well to pick a middle course. One of the first things they must do is get rid of that fantastic thought that if Smith is nominated the South will vote for a Republican candidate.

Many complaints have been made to the New York police lately that gangs of young men are lurking in the subways and snatching hats off the heads of passengers through the car windows. Maybe these young fellows are just training themselves for jobs as hat checkers in the up-town hotels and restaurants.

EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS

The voters of Maine voted to sustain the primary. But out of 200,000 possible voters there were about 35,000 votes for the primary and 19,000 against. Thus the vote on the primary again demonstrates the fallacy of the primary. This is an excellent example of minority rule.

Well the corn crop got here a little later than usual, again proving the worth of the old axiom about "better late than never."

An Oklahoma farmer has started a presidential room for himself. He promises if elected, to abolish strikes and bank failures, to eliminate the need for penitentiaries and to rewrite the Constitution of the United States. Wonder what he intends to do when he gets all of that done?

An Internationalist is a fellow who thinks Uncle Sam ought to make a lamb out of himself just because Europe likes mutton.

A Chicago bride who thought her husband was a prosperous businessman came down town one day and found him sitting on the street corner with a tin cup. Probably she would have been less shocked and surprised had she found him dining with a couple of flappers.

An Indiana agitator decided 176 acres of farm land to President Coolidge until such time as adequate farm relief legislation is enacted. We don't know anything about the land but it's our guess that Cal could make it pay if he had time to farm it.

A London prophet predicts that another World War will start in 1928, that Great Britain will come out victorious and Russia will be destroyed. That would be a safe enough prophecy to make in England.

The old fashioned women who need an entire session.

A proposal has now been made by the Postoffice Department for the carrying of postal post by air. This will be all right if the mail man does not get careless and drop some of his packages.

Four cities, New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia are said to be the market for half the oranges sold in America. Wonder who gets the most lemons?

President Hindenberg is still arguing about the war guilt. He ought to be good enough a politician to know that Germany became the guilty party when she lost the war. The only way she could have made the allies guilty of starting the war would have been to defeat them.

The French want another big loan from America and say that they need the money for road building and repair. There may be some merit in this if they can show that the American tourists are wearing out the highways.

Championship fights between Tunney and Dempsey seem to be like peace conferences. Their decisions never settle anything.

A new musical show on Broadway is being advertised as "clean from beginning to end." That the time has come when the cleanliness of a show can be advertised as a drawing card indicates that there is some hope for the future, despite the pessimists.

A Pennsylvania man left his wife an up-to-date as a legacy. He thought that if she could keep it in operation she would never want for the necessities of life.

We believe that Babe Ruth could kick either Dempsey or Tunney if the referee would let him take his bat into the ring with him.

"WE"

Of the many good things that are resulting from Lindbergh's trans-oceanic flight, none is more valuable than the new realization of interdependence the public has obtained from Lindbergh's use of the word "we."

Who among us is independent? Who accomplishes anything unassisted? Who can live, clothe himself and go about in safety except by the help of others? Yet how often does any of us make acknowledgement of our interdependence? It is only when the ritual of the Pythian order will be shown in Grayling next Friday night and Saturday.

Arrangements are being made for establishment of a Star mail route to operate from Grayling to Lovells and return. The plans are to deliver the mail twice each week—Mondays and Fridays and on Wednesdays the mail will be delivered by train. This plan will likely be consummated according to Mr. Hinds, postoffice inspector, who was here last week looking over the route. These, however, he believes will only be temporary pending the establishment of a regular daily mail route, which will probably be done next summer to accommodate many families living along the river and hills.

TRESPASS LAW IN FORCE THIS FALL

With the opening of the upland hunting season the attention of sportsmen is being focussed on the Horton anti-trespass law, in effect for the first time this fall, and many questions are being asked as to what effect the law will have on pheasants and rabbit shooting.

Much uncertainty and confusion prevails as to the law. Many hunters are even denying a belief in its existence, or claiming they do not believe it can be enforced. Those that continue to maintain this position are doubtless due for an unpleasant surprise quite early in the gunning season.

Other sportsmen are uncertain as to what lands are affected by the law and as to what steps they must take before entering a farmer's fields to hunt.

Briefly, the Horton law prohibits hunting without permission on farm lands or wood lots connected therewith. Which means that it governs every acre of land in the settled sections of the state. It will operate in the unclean lands of the northern counties only so far as the grounds of private hunting clubs are concerned.

A bit of garlic rubbed around the salad bowl just enough to give a mere suggestion of flavor makes an acceptable improvement in flavor and rabbit shooting.

You can bring some of the late vegetables and green tomatoes for making pickles later on. The U. S. Department of Agriculture will tell you how.

Representative stocks in the security exchanges have lost ground, owing to irregularities in the earnings reports of some of the leaders. General Motors made a good showing, while steel was disappointing. Purely speculative holdings are being reduced and a large professional element are selling short. But cheap money continues and this fact, added to the strong position of most industries and the big earnings of some of the important units, justifies the hope of a continuing strong market, both in stocks and bonds.

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. Bailey, Co. Agricultural Agent

WHAT IS A BOY?

"He is the person who is going to carry on what you have started."

He is to sit right where you are sitting and when you are gone, attend to those things which you think are so important.

You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they will be carried out depends on him.

Even if you make leagues and treaties, he will have to manage them.

He is going to sit at your desk in the Senate and occupy your place on the Supreme Bench.

He will assume control of your cities, states and nation.

He is going to move in and take over your prisons, churches, schools, universities and corporations.

All your work is going to be judged, praised and condemned by him.

Your reputation and future are in his hands.

All your work is for him, and the fate of the nation and humanity is in his hands.

So it might be well to pay him some attention.

—Meadville, Pa., Kiwanis Club.

Our Share of Responsibility

The writer of these notes, as an agricultural advisor, has other duties connected with farm life besides advising what to do to make alfalfa grow.

There are some other things relative to rural life besides things that can be touched with the hands. There is good citizenship, neighborliness, sociability of the neighborhood, looks of the home and farmstead, the neighborhood schools.

Whatever I may or may not write about the others, I wish to voice some truths about the farm school, or rural school, in which each farm family has such a large ownership, and should have a large interest.

Visit the School

I wonder how many parents visit the local rural school even as often as once a year. Not many. There are too many who are too much like those who drive an auto from the back seat. The inspections that farm folks make of their school is generally left to a once-a-year visit by the women. Men seldom go, excepting to say, "If you can't stop fighting among pupils on the road home after school, I guess we will get some one who can." There is very little constructive, helpful visiting in a friendly spirit. Visits by men or women are so infrequent that the teacher is nervous, frightened and does far from her best when the visitor does arrive. When visitors arrive, at such long intervals the children seldom act natural.

Local Talent and Help

In every district there is much talent among parents that could be of great help to the school. This should always be utilized to the fullest every year. It is not enough that pupils take half an hour gathering around to watch the method of sharpening a saw, or a plane, or of splicing a rope, as done by some good man, who perhaps was no talker, but could do things, than to inflict upon them the dead monotony that characterizes for too many school rooms.

Friends — Which do you suppose these visitors of your school will become, friends or enemies?

They will become your friends, and the school's friend, and will silently or vocally refer to the school as "our school," particularly if not embarrassed by tittering pupils. There will be no tittering pupils if the teacher knows her business. It is good for the pupils manners to have visitors.

Principles of Agriculture Should Be Taught Daily

One of the most astounding things that an observant person notices in our rural schools is the fact that though these pupils come from farm homes, to schools supported in part by these farmers, there is no teaching about farm life. Nothing said or done to lead to appreciation of, or improvement of, farm life. Nothing said or done that leads to more skill in meeting problems there. No lesson in agriculture. No books on agriculture. No agriculture bulletins or farm papers on what should be the "reading table." That great, noble subject that could easily be made the most interesting one in each day's work, because it is so at hand, so bright afternoon, every fall, two or three as nearly ideal cows as he had; and with the pupils gathered around the farmer and his cows in the school yard, listen to a talk, just off-hand, talk, by the farmer, on the points of a good dairy cow, as he passes his hand over this part and that part of the animal.

Though but little schooled, this farmer, by his years of hard practical experience, his love for fine animals, would in all likelihood, be able to tell the children in language that they could well understand, many things of great value about selecting good animals by their appearance, and how best to feed them afterwards for best results.

Once a year would be none too often to have this done, for there might be some new pupils, and those who had heard the story before would have early impressions strengthened, to the end that when they seek stock for themselves, or help father select them, they would have quite a safe idea set up in mind to help in the selection.

Teachers need not say that the subject is not useful. Everybody knows better. Teachers need not say there is not enough about agriculture to teach each day. A new fact, process, method of principle of agriculture, can be found for each school day of the school year. Teachers need not say that it would not be interesting to pupils so young. It has been shown with actual children that, taught right, it can be made the most interesting topic of the day's work to children including third grade and up, and much of it enjoyed and understood by even lower grades.

Farmers need not say: "What does that town girl teacher know about farming?" If she prepares she can know as much about it as she does about physiology that she presumes to teach and is allowed to teach just learned it.

Teachers need not say: "I can't teach agriculture. I never lived on a farm."

They do not hesitate to teach the geography of the countries that they never saw, and may never see; but, which they teach about because they have diligent study to learning something about them. Let them do the same thing about the fundamental principles of agriculture.

Neither teachers, parents nor school officers can side-step the issue by saying: "There is not time for any more subjects." Teachers in earnest on this subject have found time in school containing all the eight grades, by teaching the other subjects better, condensing, cutting out glib talk, driving more swiftly and surely to the point, thus saving valuable time and making the impressions on the minds of the pupils more intense, and so, more lasting.

Is this sense or is it not?

From Hoard's Dairyman of Sept. 25, 1927, we clip the following:

"A standard work on rural schools, now in its second edition, contains a statement to the effect that nearly all country children will remain on the farm except the few of them that nature has designed for higher spheres of usefulness in the city.

These exceptional children should be taken care of, but their wants should not be allowed to dominate the course of study. But how many of these exceptional children are there? Are they in a majority? Probably so, in some rural communities. If the question was left to the parents, the answer of the professor who wrote that excellent treatise on rural schools is very common that the doctor or the lawyer, or the minister fills a sphere of higher influence than the farmer.

I submit that the pictures of the successful farmers and their families that occasionally appear in Hoard's Dairyman in connection with the description of successful farms, show a rugged determination and strength of character unsurpassed by other classes.

The station they have reached has demanded of them the very highest mental, moral and physical qualifications.

Looking again at that picture of the Michigan farm boy in Hoard's Dairyman, I would say that the school he went to has had something to do with his pride in rural life. It may be possible to find children with a cityified education on successful farms, but not likely.

"A system of education that trains boys and girls away from industry and work and makes them parasites as far as economic production is concerned, is an intolerable evil. If you want to know where to find the future presidents of the United States, if history is to repeat itself, you will not find them under in some great university, nor lounging in the Peacock Alley of some great hotel, but you will find them out in the great Mississippi Valley doing chores on the farm, doing the common things of life to the best of their ability, doing them in such a way as to inspire the confidence of those about them in the integrity of their character. If that is what it takes to be a "hick," then the more "hicks" we turn out of our schools, the better we will be."

Who said that? Some old grinch of a farmer? Not at all. John J. Tigert, National Commissioner of Education, said that and enough more like it to fill a column at a recent state teachers' convention.

There are only two excuses imaginable for a man to talk that way. One is that he believes in what he says, and the other is that he thought such a talk might do the teachers some good.

We feel so deeply in earnest over this matter of improvement of agriculture through the early training of farm children in the intricacies and the details of real farming, that we propose to appeal further to you in an article to appear here on "New Schools for Old."

True Six-Cylinder Luxury Now Costs So Little to Enjoy

The sensational success of the Pontiac Six is based on the simple fact that it provides true six-cylinder luxury on a basis of true economy. ... Its first cost is low—$745 is the lowest price ever placed on a six with Body by Fisher. It can be purchased on attractive GMAC terms. It is inexpensive to operate and maintain. And finally, Pontiac Six commands a high resale value in every section of the country... All this brings true six-cylinder luxury within reach of the most modest purse—and that is why so many thousands are making Pontiac Six the car of their choice.

Check Carbon in Advance With Shell Gasoline and Shell Motor Oil.

—The Anti-Carbon Pair

400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline and Golden Clear Shell Motor Oil are the "anti-carbon pair" scientifically refined to go and work together. 400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline burns completely because it vaporizes completely, leaving no greasy residue to injure the crankcase oil. Golden Clear Shell Motor Oil contains the lowest possible amount of carbon, and when used with 400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline deposits less carbon than heretofore had been thought possible.

Why take chances with your car? Why run the risk of trouble, damage, repair bills and untimely depreciation when 400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline and Golden Clear Shell Motor Oil are so conveniently available at Shell Yellow-Red Service Stations, and cost no more than the ordinary kind?

Every motorist is familiar with the evils of excess carbon. But not everyone knows that carbon can be checked in advance by the selection of an "extra dry" gasoline and a "golden clear" motor oil to use with it. Both the characters and the condition of the crankcase oil influence the amount of carbon deposited. If the fresh oil put into a car already contains excess natural carbon, an excess deposit of carbon in the motor surely will result. If a "wet" gasoline, containing greasy particles is used, the motor oil will be diluted quickly, and carbonization will take place freely.

The secret of checking carbon, therefore, does not lie wholly in the use of an "extra dry" gasoline or of a "golden clear" motor oil but in the combination of both. Then, each will supplement the virtues of the other to give a new sensation of power, a new thrill to driving, a new freedom from carbon and its attending evils.

Four Things

Four things a man must learn to do: If he would make his record true; To think without confusion clearly; To love his fellowmen sincerely; To trust in God and Heaven securely.

The Hallowe'en party given by the teachers last Saturday evening, in the school dining room was voted a decided success by all who attended. The room was attractively decorated in keeping with Hallowe'en. Games, contests and ghost stories were features of the evening's entertainment. A delicious lunch was served.

The Chinewa Sewing Club held their monthly business meeting Tuesday evening. They won all contests and made a total of seventy-five baskets.

Have you tried the candy which the Seniors are selling? If not, don't fail to do so. You will surely miss a treat.

Miss Hawkes—"Is there anything that you can do better than anyone else?"

Ralph—"Yes, I can read my own writing."

Mr. Hall—"What do you mean by saying Benedict Arnold was a janitor?"

Olive—"It says here that after his exile he spent the rest of his days in an basement."

Mr. Payne—"What excuse have you to offer for being late this morning?"

Ethel Barber—"I hurried so fast I didn't have time to think of one."

Now that the monthly "tests" are over we are all able to smile again.

The Germination Box is proving to be very interesting. The beans have reached a height of ten inches, the corn nine and a half, and the peas five and a half.

The girls in the "Gym" class are doing splendid work. Ethel Wixson, Margaret Boroff, Ethel Barber and Ethel Richards, are very proud of the records they made Monday evening. They won all contests and made a total of seventy-five baskets.

Our Hallowe'en party last Friday was a great surprise to the Primary room. Every one enjoyed a fine afternoon.

We regret very much the loss of one of our Second Graders, Margaret Hildred, who has moved away.

We are glad to have the nurse with us again.

Those not tardy or absent last month were: Edna Ensign, Andy Arnold, Rose Lewis, Helen Charlton, Elsie Weaver, Alan Leng, Catherine Ensign, Edith Baldwin, Orville Murphy, Marie Horton, Elmore Barber and Grace Harmon.

The Second and Third Grades are doing good work in multiplication.

Third grade language class learned, "The Baggy Man." They were very much enthused.

Doris Leng and Clyde Highien were our visitors last Friday.

Third Graders are doing their best to hand in neat papers and get one hundred.

These kind of papers go on the board for inspection by Superintendent Payne or any one who wishes to look at them.

We are glad to have Bertha Pratt with us again after being absent four days.

Editors: Marius Hanson, Isbrand Harder, Ellen Speck

We have discovered a new poet in school. Marquita Land, by name. Here is an example of her work:

When We Were Young and Foolish

When we were young and foolish

In the days of long ago.

The three of us in a row;

When we were young and foolish

In the days of long ago.

The teacher used to scold

For talking a lot you know;

When we were young and foolish

In the days of long ago.

But now that we are older

And not so young and gay,

Our parents now look over

The bad deeds of that past day;

When we were young and foolish

And also full of play.

When we were young and foolish

In the days of long ago.

The teacher used to scold

For talking a lot you know;

When we were young and foolish

In the days of long ago.

Miss T. Smith, Teacher.

The Sixth A class has been having a contest in Geography between the boys and the girls. They have been learning the states and capitals of

New England and the Middle Atlantic

States.

Miss Ashton and Miss Smith's rooms had a Hallowe'en Party Friday evening. Ghost stories were enjoyed during the course of the evening in which real ghost appeared. A good time was had by all.

days."

That a man in the newspaper got the news
From a gang of smooth American Jews
That some fellow in Borne,
Who knew a man who claimed to know
A hermit who lived beside a lake
Whose mother-in-law will undertake
To prove a friend's sister's neice
Has stated in a nicely written piece
That she has a son who knows about
The date when the new Ford comes out.

Mr. Ford bought one of the early cotton gins the other day. Now we know what the new Ford will be like.

I went to the Senior's class meeting Friday. The secretary submitted the following: "Usual meeting was called to order by the usual person during the usual hour with the usual form.
President called for roll as usual. No additions or corrections as usual business followed. As usual the treasurer left his report at home. The reading of the report was postponed until next meeting as usual. Usual time cut. Usual disagreement. Usual motion for adjournment in order, moved as usual. Usual motion for adjournment by Earle Gierke, seconded, as usual by Edward Mason. The usual ap-pox and rushing for door. As usual Isbrand Harder."

Some people's heads are only used to keep their ears from rubbing together.

Henry LaGrow in a large Oldsmobile was going along the road and got stuck in the mud at the bottom of a long steep hill. Along came a thing, a Ford by name, belonging to Louie Konwicki. Louie offered his assistance.

"Well, you pull me out with that car!" replied Henry. "That's impossible.
You can't even make the hill yourself."

"Well, if you want me to, I'll try my luck at it." Laughing at the impossibility of the thing, Henry said:
"Well, if you think you can do it, go ahead."

The Ford easily yanked the car out of the mud and pulled it up the hill.
At the top Henry said, "Say, what's all that smoke coming out of your car?"

"Well, I'll be darned!" answered Louie, "I had my brakes on all the time."

The Senior's Hallowe'en party was enjoyed by many on Saturday evening.
Considering the weather, a large crowd was present including a number of outsiders from Gaylord, Roscommon and Alpena. A good time was had by all.

Mr. Smith (after examining Mr.
Cushman's apartment)—"You sure have a nice place to live in. I wish I could afford a place like this."

Mr. Cushman—"Yes, you married men may have your better halves but we bachelors have better halves."

The football game Friday with Mancosca was in the visitors favor.

Our boys fought a very close game each moment being of interest to the crowd.

There is plenty of noise and rattling paper in Miss Adams' session. She says, "I want the assembly kept quiet."

The members of the boys club held a sandwich sale Friday to raise funds for the club.

Alva Stephan is back in school after several days of sickness.

Isbrand H.—"What was that rooster crowing about at 6 o'clock this morning?"

Helena H.—"Oh, that was nothing.
I remember when you got up at 7:30
you crowed about it for a week."

Doctor—"You said your father was injured in an explosion. How did it happen?"

Child—"Well, mother said it was too much yeast, but father said it was too much sugar."
